

In their attempts to mold our town into a polished hellscape of condominiums, micro breweries, and yuppies, the City and the Police have deprived us of the very freedom to live our lives—controlling, harassing, and brutalizing those who do not fit in to their dystopian vision of progress. This is not an exception, a crisis, or an abnormal outrage; this is precisely the role of the state and its legion of petty bureaucrats. The state and capital take our lives from us and try to sell us back fragments, then say we should be grateful for these concessions. They attempt to exchange crumbs for our silence and loyalty, for social peace. But we will not comply. We have no interest in anything the state has to offer. Only we can take back our lives and seize the world we desire, let's not wait!

TAKE BACK WHAT'S OURS
RECLAIM THE COMMONS

In their attempts to mold our town into a polished hellscape of condominiums, micro breweries, and yuppies, the City and the Police have deprived us of the very freedom to live our lives—controlling, harassing, and brutalizing those who do not fit in to their dystopian vision of progress. This is not an exception, a crisis, or an abnormal outrage; this is precisely the role of the state and its legion of petty bureaucrats. The state and capital take our lives from us and try to sell us back fragments, then say we should be grateful for these concessions. They attempt to exchange crumbs for our silence and loyalty, for social peace. But we will not comply. We have no interest in anything the state has to offer. Only we can take back our lives and seize the world we desire, let's not wait!

TAKE BACK WHAT'S OURS
RECLAIM THE COMMONS